

Metronome - October 2004

Chris Reddy certainly exhibits that he's a well rounded musician on his CD "Sonification". Performing all the instruments that include electric guitar and acoustic guitars, synthesizers, drum programming and vocals, Reddy utilizes his home studio and his talents to the fullest on this release. Having a similar sentiment as the great Todd Rundgren, Reddy takes very personal experiences and allows them to play out in a musical setting. His quirky messages manage to hit home with listeners as the easily identifiable track "Corporate Guy" Everyone's been in this position before and Reddy sums up the lifestyle in a song that weighs in at almost six minutes long.

"Sonification" is full of lush arrangements and layered sounds that have a mesmerizing quality to them. Reddy is just as comfortable dealing a blazing guitar driven tune as he is a full on pop tune or street savvy rap.
