

MARCH 29, 2020

Dear Linden Waldorf School Community,

I'm writing on the eve of our Beyond the Classroom opening day. What a whirlwind these last several days, even these last several hours, have been! As we join hearts as a school and step together into our collective "new normal" tomorrow, I wanted to take a moment to tell you how proud I am of our entire community.

Despite the daunting reality the world faces and the uncertainty that accompanies it, we are committed to providing rich learning experiences for our students and nurturing our vibrant community spirit. We hope these qualities shine through in your experience of Beyond the Classroom.

On a personal note, I've done a lot as a mother of seven children, but tomorrow will be completely new territory. Tim and I will be trying to balance working from home while supporting multiple children's new schedules right along with you!

These are turbulent and distressing times but no matter what tomorrow or the days to come may bring, I know we will write this chapter of the Linden biography as one of perseverance, courage, and enduring care for one another. We are making our mark on history and I am so grateful to be weathering this season with you. See you tomorrow.

With gratitude,

Tricia Drake, Head of School
