

Dear Linden Waldorf School Families,

On Wednesday, Governor Bill Lee called on schools to remain closed through the end of the 2019–2020 school year, a possibility—now reality—for which Linden had already prepared. Linden's Beyond the Classroom Distance Learning Program will continue through May 22 and I will share plans for how we will adjust our customary assessments and year-end reports as we finalize those details. We continue to collaborate with other Waldorf schools across the country, as well as our peers in the Nashville independent school community, on ways to best meet the evolving needs of our students and our families.

We as a school have already met this global crisis with a nimbleness of mind, courage of heart, and generosity of spirit that will serve us well as we complete the school year physically distant yet closely held by the ties of a resourceful and resilient community. We are already hard at work envisioning memorable and meaningful ways to mark the spring milestones we cherish while respecting government safety guidelines.

Lastly, I want to thank you for providing feedback on your family's experience with distance learning in last week's survey. We are grateful for your comments and suggestions, and we truly take them to heart as we continue to hone our program. I invite you to reflect on our third week of distance learning and share your thoughts in this week's survey.

I'll keep you posted on what's happening on my end and hope you'll do the same.

Onward,

Tricia Drake, Head of School
