AKC Companion Animal Recovery 24 hour
How Effective is Microchipping?

AKC Companion Animal Recovery service has enrolled 4,022,826 pets, and 363,222 pets recovered.

In the past 13 years. Each year millions of pets are lost, Micro-chipping your pet gives you and your pet the best chance to stay connected for life. ASPCA recommends microchipping your pet to help you and your pet.

Microchipping help identify your pet. If your pet is lost
And ends up an animal shelter, they will know whose pet it is. It Increases the chances of your pet being returned.

There is less chance that someone will steal your pet. As a microchip is a permanent record that the dog belongs to you, there is less likely that someone will be able to get away with stealing your pet. The microchip cannot be removed, it's a permanent method of identification.

Microchipping is not painful for your pet. The microchip is very small and is injected with a needle. It feels the same as a vaccination when your puppy goes to the vet.

Identification information can be easily updated at all times. The information is kept on a database, it is a simple matter to update your details whenever you move or your phone number changes.

Nobody wants to lose a pet. Pets become part of the family and when they disappear it can be very upsetting. So lets stay connected for life.
